London Council Announces Penalties To Cease Only When Satisfactory Reparations Agreement Is Reached

(By Associated Press)

Dusseldorf, March 10.—Since the allied troops marched into the new zone of occupation, not the slightest untoward incident has occurred and General Degoutte, in command of the occupation, has returned to Mayence.

"One could almost say that our arrival is the fulfillment of a long-cherished hope," commented a high allied officer today.

Workers, who might be expected to give trouble, show no signs of dissatisfaction. The socialist leaders say the army has promised to respect their organizations and that is all they ask. If the army rids them of the hated "green devils," as the state police are called, they promise to live on the best of terms with it.

At Duisburg and Ruhrort a certain ferment is apparent. The walls are plastered with placards headed with the red flag. The soldiers had occasion to disperse sullen-faced groups, but it seems merely a passing show of ill-humour for the factories are working full blast, while other sections of the population appear to feel relief.

The occupation assures the maintenance of that order so dear to the German heart, while General Degoutte's proclamation promising a better friendship had made an excellent impression.

PENALTIES TO CEASE WHEN GERMANY PAYS

London, March 10.—The allied supreme council met at the Downing street residence of Premier Lloyd George to consider application of the penalties to Germany for nonfulfillment of her reparations obligations.

The members of the council took note of the fact that the German towns of Dusseldorf, Duisburg and Ruhrort had been occupied since Tuesday without incident, and compared notes regarding the action to be taken on the second penalty, namely, the imposition by each allied country of such a tax on German imports as it may deem fitting.

Penalties imposed upon Germany will cease only when a satisfactory solution of the question of reparations, disarmament and war criminals has been accepted by the allies, the council decided.

M. Briand declared that the French government had no intention of permanently occupying the territory on the left bank of the Rhine. He said the only object was to secure execution of the treaty.

The council agreed to instruct the allied high commission of the Rhineland to invite attendance of Italian representatives when economic questions resulting from application of penalties were under consideration.

Besides dealing with sanctions, the council decided to draft a bill for a 50 per cent toll on sales of German goods. In this connection it was stated that imports to allied countries through neutral countries will be required to have certificates from the respective chambers of commerce in the neutral countries or in the countries of transshipment, showing origin of the goods.

Discussion of the question relating to Turkey and Greece was resumed and there will be private conversations with the Greeks and Turks, in the hope of arriving at a settlement.

BEASON INSTRUCTS FARM CLUB BOYS OF STEEP HOLLOW

In keeping with the policy of R. W. Persons, Assistant State Agent in charge of Boy's Club Work, Extension Service, A. & M. College, County Agent Beason will work with the clubs of the county by the group method, thus enabling more frequent visits as well as more efficient instructions.

County Superintendent Eck Smith and the teachers of the county are giving enthusiastic support to club activities and as a result County Agent Beason reports unusual interest already manifested among the boys and the girls of the county.

On last Thursday the county agent called at the Steep Hollow school and asked Mr. Stone, the teacher, to let the larger club boys assist in demonstration in vaccinating cattle for blackleg. The following boys responded and assisted in vaccinating 28 head of cattle: Guy Tobias, Raymon Mathis, Dan Hall, Hilma Andrews, Russel Etheridge and Curtis Bullock.

The boys were given instruction not only in administering the dose, but also in the care and sterilization of instruments, cause and treatment of blackleg and etc. The work being finished, the county agent asked that each boy write a story of the trip. Following is the story written by Guy Tobias, president of the Steep Hollow club which is one of the six:

Thursday morning March 3, Mr. C. L. Beason, County Agent, came out to Steep Hollow school. Mr. Beason and six of us club boys left the school house about 9:30 a.m. to go and vaccinate some of the farmers' calves for blackleg. Blackleg is most of us know is a very harmful germ to cattle usually affecting those from six months to two years old. The germ is taken by the animal with its food from the pasture. When we left school we went to Mr. Jim Tobias' and from there to Aubrey Tobias'. We vaccinated ten calves in all. After taking some pictures we went to Mr. Elbert Moore's and doctored five for him. We went from there to Mr. J. J. Vandiver's. Mr. Vandiver was at work in the field and while Mr. Beason was sterilizing his instruments some of the boys rode some yearlings.

Mr. Beason had us all to try our hand in the work. He also left his instruments and vaccine with Dan Hall so he could vaccinate his father's calves which he'll do Saturday morning.

Miss Reba Rugeley of Matagorda who has been here on a visit to Miss Margaret Zuber has returned home.

NUMEROUS HOUSE BILLS DIE TODAY AUTOMATICALLY

350 HOUSE MEASURES KILLED INCLUDING ROUNTREE FORESTRY BILL

(Special to Dallas News)

Austin, Texas, March 10.—An appropriation of $3,000,000 for public school aid the next two years to supplement the available school fund was provided by the House on the edge of the deadline after which House bills can not be engrossed. The bill, introduced by Mr. Nelson, carried an appropriation of $5,000,000, but was cut down by the House to $3,000,000. Vote on engrossment was 117 to 9. The bill must be finally passed by Thursday noon to reach the Senate in time for consideration there.

An effort to further cut down the appropriation to $2,000,000 was made by Mr. Curtis, supported by Mr. Veatch, but Speaker Thomas sustained a point of order raised by John Davis, that the $2,000,000 appropriation was not in order, as the House, by adopting an amendment for $3,000,000 had agreed on this amount and could not consider any other figure.

Mr. Pollard obtained the engrossment of his bill, appropriating $5,000 for the purchase of fireproof steel cabinets for the Adjutant General's office, in which to file the war records of Texas soldiers, sailors, marines and nurses.

The last House bill to pass to engrossment in the Thirty-Seventh House was a bill by Mr. Mott and Mr. Thompson of Harris, authorizing the County Commissioners' Courts to appoint persons who may administer hog cholera virus. This authority now is limited to the live stock sanitary commission. Mr. Bryant and Mr. Burmeister opposed the bill on the grounds administration of the virus was dangerous in the hands of a person not an expert.

No part of an appropriation of $550,000 for the State Prison Commission may be used to pay for the purported purchase of an oil mill at Richmond from the Fort Bend cotton oil mill by the terms of an amendment added by the House, to the Page bill from the Senate, which was passed to third reading Wednesday afternoon. The amendment offered by Messrs. Darroch, Chittwood, Seagler and Teer set forth that the Legislature in no wise approved the oil mill deal.

The $550,000 appropriation is in the nature of a loan to the Prison Commission, Mr. Satterwhite said, and is supposed to be repaid at a later date. Of the total amount $200,000 is to be paid on the Blue Ridge Farm purchase.

The House killed Senator Witt's bill intended to permit W. S. Scrivner, recently convicted in Federal Court at Dallas of complicity in the robbery of the substation postoffice at Dallas to testify against his accomplices. Scrivner is an ex-convict.

Three measures vitally affecting the oil and gasoline production business of Texas never reached engrossment. One of these was the Coffee bill increasing the gross oil production tax from 1-2 per cent to 3 per cent. Mr. Coffee will ask the Governor to submit this legislation at the special session. Another bill which died sought to divide the gross oil production tax between the State and the county in which the oil is produced.

Another dead measure is the Hill bill placing tax of 1c per gallon on the retailer of gasoline and other motor fuel oils.

Passes to lobbyists and visitors, except families of members, were revoked by Speaker Thomas Wednesday morning. The speaker said that the presence of visitors was distracting the House and preventing it from conducting its business rapidly, as was demanded in the closing hours. Members had complained of the presence of so many persons on the floor. Speaker Thomas said he would reserve the right to issue passes as he saw fit, but that all passes heretofore issued were canceled.

The Rountree forestry bill, which sought to provide a fund for the reforestation of the State and the conservation of the uncut timber lands, is another measure which went down silently Wednesday. The bill placed a tax of 12 1-2 per cent per 1,000 on timber.

Two measures seeking to amend the Dean law died on the calendar. One was the Morris of Medina bill. The other bill was by Mr. Burkett and makes it not unlawful for a person to purchase and have liquor in his possession. The purpose of this bill was to permit purchasers to testify against the seller.

The House refused to concur in Senate amendments to the House concurrent resolution providing for the state to carry its own insurance on the capitol and other State buildings and a free conference committee was granted on motion of Mr. Satterwhite. The Senate added to the House resolution provision for protection for the University and the normal schools.

$3,000,000 SCHOOL FUND MEASURE IS PASSED IN HOUSE

(By Associated Press)
Austin, Texas, March 10.—The House killed the American Legion boxing bill which had passed Senate by refusing to take it up today. The time for engrossing Senate bills expired at noon today. The clock was moved back half an hour to save a number of Senate bills. The House also killed the Senate bill proposing to allow convicts to testify in state cases by refusing to consider it before noon. The $3,000,000 supplemental school fund measure passed finally in the House and is now in the Senate.

EVANGELIST SCORES LAX CHRISTIANITY

LARGE CONGREGATION PRESENT AT REVIVAL MEETING LAST EVENING.

Apparent indifference of many church members to the work of saving souls, was the basis of Rev. H. B. DeLay's sermon at the Methodist revival meeting last night. The services were well attended despite the somewhat disagreeable weather.

Before beginning his sermon, Rev. DeLay announced that on Friday night he would preach a special sermon and stated that he especially desired to have a large congregation present at that time. He declared that no controverted point of doctrine was to be taken up or that he was not intending to enter into a lengthy discussion of why he was a Methodist. Rev. Willis added that when this evangelist preached a special sermon, every one who heard it would be well repaid for coming out.

The compromising, conventional, ritual-bound, surface Christian was scored in the sermon last night. "Many church members," the evangelist declared, "are like sheep. Since the pastors are instructed to feed the sheep, they are content to sit with open mouths and be fed until they are suffering from 'spiritual indigestion.' In some cases it becomes necessary to shear the sheep and to be none too careful with the shears."

A bank that has not a penny in its vault, a school that has never instructed a pupil, a train that has never carried a passenger were some of his comparisons to the church that saves no souls. "Boosters, not roosters, are needed in the church work," he continued. "If you tear up the nest of a setting hen or sitting hen, whichever is correct, the hen will promptly return to the place where the nest was." The evangelist believes that if the benches were moved from the churches the people would sit in their accustomed places on Sundays on nothing but thin air.

Mr. DeLay took a hand in directing the singing last night and his efforts along that line were rewarded with the response they deserved. "The Old Time Religion" was the hymn he chose and while very few of the verses that were sung were written in the book, practically everyone in the congregation joined in the singing.

During the remainder of the meeting, the morning services are to be announced from day to day. Both the pastor and Rev. DeLay emphasized the worth of the services held during the morning and urged a large attendance.

REV. TRAINUM TALKS AT ALLEN ACADEMY

Rev. W. H. Trainum, pastor of the First Christian church at the chapel exercises this morning at Allen Academy made a very helpful and inspiring talk. He took for his theme, "Helping God with His Job." Defining God's job as the work of developing perfection out of imperfection, he gave many familiar examples from the common life about us and gradually led up to the application of the great truth to the lives of men. He showed how God has given to men the high privilege of cooperating with Him in bringing forth fruits and flowers and animals to a state of improvement approximating perfection and especially how God has set that same principle to work in the life of each individual man. The talk made a deep impression.

TABOR NEWS.

Tabor, Texas, March 10.—Tabor schools carried four basket ball teams to Kurten last Friday where four lively games were played. The teams were Tabor High Senior boys and girls and Cottonwood Junior boys and girls and a mixed girl team from Cottonwood. The Tabor teams won both games, score for boys, 6 and 24; for the girls, 2 and 29.

Players for boys' first: Forwards, Freddie Lock and Fayette Wilson, guards: Ernest Ammons and Hermon Blanton, centers: Jim Huggins, second half, Freddie Lock, Fayette Wilson guards; Ray Walker and Hermon Blanton, centers; George Harrison with Aubrey Moore as substitutes.

Players for girls: Forwards, Midge Batten and Alma McCallum; guards, Dee Worsham and Eva Gandy, centers Bertha Walker and Lovie Huggins.

The Cottonwood girls won by a heavy score but we failed to get the exact figures. Kurten Junior boys won over the Cottonwood Junior boys by a heavy score.

The Kurten Senior girls had to play two of their teachers but they were no match for the Tabor girls.

Mr. C. L. Beason came by the High School yesterday and took four of the boys to Mr. Francis' to observe and help in vaccinating several head of calves and yearlings for blackleg. The boys reported a helpful time as a lesson. They will report on this experiment next week.

As our athletic contests come off on the 19th of March, our schedule and program will be quite full till then.

The following letter was written by George Harrison, one of the students in the Tabor High School:

"On March 8, Mr. C. L. Beason came out to Tabor High School and took four of us boys with him to Mr. Elzie Francis' for the purpose of vaccinating some yearlings.

"We arrived at Mr. Francis about 10 o'clock. We put the car under a shed and we had not been there long until it began to rain. It rained for twenty or thirty minutes.

"After the rain Mr. Beason went to the house to sterilize his vaccinating needle. We had the cows in the pen by the time Mr. Beason was ready for the work. He vaccinated the first calf to show us how. Then he had us to try our hand. The needle holds 30 C.C. That is six doses of medicine. The medicine we used was Aggressor.

"The blackleg is a bad disease among cattle. It is taken up from the sand and water. It is worse among those from six months to two years old. The shot ought to be given about a month before blackleg season. "After we had finished vaccinating, went to the house and ate dinner. We finished eating dinner about 1:30 and we then started for school about 2:00. We arrived at school at about 2:30. Mr. Ammons asked Mr. Beason what he did with us and he said he made doctors out of us. We all had a good time and consider it very valuable. We are proud that Mr. Beason came by after us.

Mrs. R. V. Kernole is in Waco this week for a visit with relatives and friends.

CLARA SMITH HAMON MURDER TRIAL OPENS AT ARDMORE, OKLA.

All of Principal Figures Announce Ready—Is Greatest Trial Ever Held In State—182 Veniremen Have Been Summoned—Intense Interest Shown In Proceedings.

(By Associated Press)

Ardmore Court House, March 10, at 9:13.—Today, Judge Thomas W. Champion dropped his gavel, opening the trial of Clara Hamon for the alleged murder of Jake Hamon, Oklahoma's greatest murder trial during her fourteen years of statehood. All of the principal figures were ready. 182 veniremen were summoned. Both sides are said to be content to handle the case on merits as a murder case and that no resorting to grandstanding would be done. The court room became jammed with people shortly before the trial began.

During the course of examination of veniremen by the state counsel, spectators evidenced interest in this phase of the trial. A partial list of witnesses was read by B. F. Laughridge. Veniremen are under examination and names of the Ardmore bankers summoned are noted.

DIVISION OF EVIDENCE.

The evidence will be divided thus: The prosecution will attempt to prove that Clara Smith Hamon killed her employer and affinity, Jake L. Hamon, in a cold-blooded and unprovoked fashion. The defense will attempt to prove that a revolver held in Clara's hand was accidentally discharged when the Republican National Committeeman struck upon her with a chair after a period of drunken abuse.

The state will attempt to show that Clara Smith achieved a murder inspiration after realizing that the oil magnate and politician was about to discard her and take up a life of "respectability." The defense will try to show that Clara despised the life she had led with Hamon; that she, herself, had helped arrange a plan whereby the two should part.

The prosecution is represented by S. P. Freeling, attorney general of the state of Oklahoma, who was named by the governor to appear in the case, and by P. H. Brown of Ardmore.

James C. O'Brien, former assistant state's attorney at Chicago, also is in the city and is said to represent Mrs. Jake L. Hamon, widow of the deceased. Attorney O'Brien is famed in his section of the country as a prosecutor.

The defendant is represented by William McLean, Jr., and Walter B. Scott of Fort Worth; J. B. Champion, James P. Matthews and C. A. Oakley of Ardmore.

The lawyers say that it will require from one to two days to obtain a jury and less than ten days to hear the evidence. How long it will take the jury to formulate a verdict after the case goes to them is only a matter for speculation. No one, however, is expecting a failure on the part of the twelve men to agree one way or another within a reasonable time after the case reaches their hands.

There are witnesses whose statements are awaited with excitement. One such—and probably the first witness who will be called—is Frank Ketch, general manager of the Hamon properties and Jake Hamon's business overseer. Ketch originated and gave first circulation to the fabrication that Jake Hamon accidentally shot himself while cleaning a .32 caliber automatic pistol. Ketch is expected to admit on the stand that this story was an untruth, told with the kindly purpose of protecting Hamon from notoriety and announced at a time when he believed Hamon would survive his wound. This much of Ketch's testimony is generally anticipated.

The heart appeal will come in the testimony of two women most concerned with what the verdict will be. The testimony of these two—the defendant, 27, and the slain man's widow, 42.

Twenty or more newspaper correspondents have arrived at Ardmore to report the proceedings. All the press associations, as well as a number of leading Eastern and Texas dailies, are represented, and special telegraph wires have been strung into an ante-chamber of the court room where operators will transmit the evidence almost as rapidly as it is given by the witnesses to newspapers in all parts of the country.

This authority now is limited to the live stock sanitary commission. Mr. Bryant and Mr. Burmeister opposed the bill on the grounds administration of the virus was dangerous in the hands of a person not an expert.

No part of an appropriation of $550,000 for the State Prison Commission may be used to pay for the purported purchase of an oil mill at Richmond from the Fort Bend cotton oil mill by the terms of an amendment added by the House, to the Page bill from the Senate, which was passed to third reading Wednesday afternoon. The amendment offered by Messrs. Darroch, Chitwood, Seagler and Teer set forth that the Legislature in no wise approved the oil mill deal.

The $550,000 appropriation is in the nature of a loan to the Prison Commission, Mr. Satterwhite said, and is supposed to be repaid at a later date. Of the total amount $200,000 is to be paid on the Blue Ridge Farm purchase.

The House killed Senator Witt's bill intended to permit W. S. Scrivner, recently convicted in Federal Court at Dallas of complicity in the robbery of the substation postoffice at Dallas to testify against his accomplices. Scrivner is an ex-convict.

Three measures vitally affecting the oil and gasoline production business of Texas never reached engrossment. One of these was the Coffee bill increasing the gross oil production tax from 1-1-2 per cent to 3 per cent. Mr. Coffee will ask the Governor to submit this legislation at the special session. Another bill which died sought to divide the gross oil production tax between the State and the county in which the oil is produced.

Another dead measure is the Hill bill placing tax of 1c per gallon on the retailer of gasoline and other motor fuel oils.

Passes to lobbyists and visitors, except families of members, were revoked by Speaker Thomas Wednesday morning. The speaker said that the presence of visitors was disturbing the House and preventing it from conducting its business rapidly, as was demanded in the closing hours. Members had complained of the presence of so many persons on the floor. Speaker Thomas said he would reserve the right to issue passes as he saw fit, but that all passes heretofore issued were canceled.

The Rountree forestry bill, which sought to provide a fund for the reforestation of the State and the conservation of the uncut timber lands, is another measure which went down silently Wednesday. The bill placed a tax of 12-1-2 per cent per 1,000 on timber.

Two measures seeking to amend the Dean law died on the calendar. One was the Morris of Medina bill. The other bill was by Mr. Burkett and makes it not unlawful for a person to purchase and have liquor in his possession. The purpose of this bill was to permit purchasers to testify against the seller.

The House refused to concur in Senate amendments to the House concurrent resolution providing for the state to carry its own insurance on the capitol and other State buildings and a free conference committee was granted on motion of Mr. Satterwhite. The Senate added to the House resolution provision for protection for the University and the normal schools.

$3,000,000 SCHOOL FUND MEASURE IS PASSED IN HOUSE

(By Associated Press)
Austin, Texas, March 10.—The House killed the American Legion boxing bill which had passed Senate by refusing to take it up today. The time for engrossing Senate bills expired at noon today. The clock was moved back half an hour to save a number of Senate bills. The House also killed the Senate bill proposing to allow convicts to testify in state cases by refusing to consider it before noon. The $3,000,000 supplemental school fund measure passed finally in the House and is now in the Senate.

EVANGELIST SCORES LAX CHRISTIANITY

LARGE CONGREGATION PRESENT AT REVIVAL MEETING LAST EVENING.

Apparent indifference of many church members to the work of saving souls, was the basis of Rev. H. B. DeLay's sermon at the Methodist revival meeting last night. The services were well attended despite the somewhat disagreeable weather.

Before beginning his sermon, Rev. DeLay announced that on Friday night he would preach a special sermon and stated that he especially desired to have a large congregation present at that time. He declared that no controverted point of doctrine was to be taken up or that he was not intending to enter into a lengthy discussion of why he was a Methodist. Rev. Willis added that when this evangelist preached a special sermon, every one who heard it would be well repaid for coming out.

The compromising, conventional, ritual-bound, surface Christian was scored in the sermon last night. "Many church members," the evangelist declared, "are like sheep. Since the pastors are instructed to feed the sheep, they are content to sit with open mouths and be fed until they are suffering from 'spiritual indigestion.' In some cases it becomes necessary to shear the sheep and to be none too careful with the shears."

A bank that has not a penny in its vault, a school that has never instructed a pupil, a train that has never carried a passenger were some of his comparisons to the church that saves no souls. "Boosters, not roosters, are needed in the church work," he continued. "If you tear up the nest of a setting hen or sitting hen, whichever is correct, the hen will promptly return to the place where the nest was." The evangelist believes that if the benches were removed from the churches the people would sit in their accustomed places on Sundays on nothing but thin air.

Mr. DeLay took a hand in directing the singing last night and his efforts along that line were rewarded with the response they deserved. "The Old Time Religion" was the hymn he chose and while very few of the verses that were sung were written in the book, practically everyone in the congregation joined in the singing.

During the remainder of the meeting, the morning services are to be announced from day to day. Both the pastor and Rev. DeLay emphasized the worth of the services held during the morning and urged a large attendance.

REV. TRAINUM TALKS AT ALLEN ACADEMY

Rev. W. H. Trainum, pastor of the First Christian church at the chapel exercises this morning at Allen Academy made a very helpful and inspiring talk. He took for his theme, "Helping God with His Job." Defining God's job as the work of developing perfection out of imperfection, he gave many familiar examples from the common life about us and gradually led up to the application of the great truth to the lives of men. He showed how God has given to men the high privilege of cooperating with Him in bringing forth fruits and flowers and animals to a state of improvement approximating perfection and especially how God has set that same principle to work in the life of each individual man. The talk made a deep impression.

TABOR NEWS.

Tabor, Texas, March 10.—Tabor schools carried four basketball teams to Kurten last Friday where four lively games were played. The teams were Tabor High Senior boys and girls and Cottonwood Junior boys and a mixed girl team from Cottonwood. The Tabor teams won both games, score for boys, 6 and 24; for the girls, 2 and 29.

Players for boys' first: Forwards, Freddie Lock and Fayette Wilson, guards; Ernest Ammons and Hermon Blanton, centers; Jim Huggins, second half, Freddie Lock, Fayette Wilson guards; Ray Walker and Hermon Blanton, centers; George Harrison with Aubrey Moore as substitutes.

Players for girls: Forwards, Midge Batten and Alma McCallum; guards, Dee Worsham and Eva Gandy, centers Bertha Walker and Lovie Higgins.

The Cottonwood girls won by a heavy score but we failed to get the exact figures. Kurten Junior boys won over the Cottonwood Junior boys by a heavy score.

The Kurten Senior girls had to play two of their teachers but they were no match for the Tabor girls.

Mr. C. L. Beason came by the High School yesterday and took four of the boys to Mr. Francis' to observe and help in vaccinating several head of calves and yearlings for blackleg. The boys reported a helpful time as a lesson. They will report on this experiment next week.

As our athletic contests come off on the 19th of March, our schedule and program will be quite full till then.

The following letter was written by George Harrison, one of the students in the Tabor High School:

"On March 8, Mr. C. L. Beason came out to Tabor High School and took four of us boys with him to Mr. Elzie Francis' for the purpose of vaccinating some yearlings.

"We arrived at Mr. Francis about 10 o'clock. We put the car under a shed and we had not been there long until it began to rain. It rained for twenty or thirty minutes.

"After the rain Mr. Beason went to the house to sterilize his vaccinating needle. We had the cows in the pen by the time Mr. Beason was ready for the work. He vaccinated the first calf to show us how. Then he had us to try our hand. The needle holds 30 C.C. That is six doses of medicine. The medicine we used was Aggressior.

"The blackleg is a bad disease among cattle. It is taken up from the sand and water. It is worse among those from six months to two years old. The shot ought to be given about a month before blackleg season. "After we had finished vaccinating, went to the house and ate dinner. We finished eating dinner about 1:30 and we then started for school about 2:00. We arrived at school at about 2:30. Mr. Ammons asked Mr. Beason what he did with us and he said he made doctors out of us. We all had a good time and consider it very valuable. We are proud that Mr. Beason came by after us.

CLARA SMITH HAMON MURDER TRIAL OPENS AT ARDMORE, OKLA.

All of Principal Figures Announce Ready—Is Greatest Trial Ever Held In State—182 Veniremen Have Been Summoned—Intense Interest Shown In Proceedings.

(By Associated Press)

Ardmore Court House, March 10, at 9:13.—Today, Judge Thomas W. Champion dropped his gavel, opening the trial of Clara Hamon for the alleged murder of Jake Hamon, Oklahoma's greatest murder trial during her fourteen years of statehood. All of the principal figures were ready. 182 veniremen were summoned. Both sides are said to be content to handle the case on merits as a murder case and that no resorting to grandstanding would be done. The court room became jammed with people shortly before the trial began.

During the course of examination of veniremen by the state counsel, spectators evidenced interest in this phase of the trial. A partial list of witnesses was read by B. F. Laughridge. Veniremen are under examination and names of the Ardmore bankers summoned are noted.

DIVISION OF EVIDENCE.

The evidence will be divided thus: The prosecution will attempt to prove that Clara Smith Hamon killed her employer and affinity, Jake L. Hamon, in a cold-blooded and unprovoked fashion. The defense will attempt to prove that a revolver held in Clara's hand was accidentally discharged when the Republican National Committeeman struck upon her with a chair after a period of drunken abuse.

The state will attempt to show that Clara Smith achieved a murder inspiration after realizing that the oil magnate and politician was about to discard her and take up a life of "respectability." The defense will try to show that Clara despised the life she had led with Hamon; that she, herself, had helped arrange a plan whereby the two should part.

The prosecution is represented by S. P. Freeling, attorney general of the state of Oklahoma, who was named by the governor to appear in the case, and by P. H. Brown of Ardmore.

James C. O'Brien, former assistant state's attorney at Chicago, also is in the city and is said to represent Mrs. Jake L. Hamon, widow of the deceased. Attorney O'Brien is famed in his section of the country as a prosecutor.

The defendant is represented by William McLean, Jr., and Walter B. Scott of Fort Worth; J. B. Champion, James P. Matthews and C. A. Oakley of Ardmore.

The lawyers say that it will require from one to two days to obtain a jury and less than ten days to hear the evidence. How long it will take the jury to formulate a verdict after the case goes to them is only a matter for speculation. "No one, however, is expecting a failure on the part of the twelve men to agree one way or another within a reasonable time after the case reaches their hands.

There are witnesses whose statements are awaited with excitement. One such—and probably the first witness who will be called—is Frank Ketch, general manager of the Hamon properties and Jake Hamon's business overseer. Ketch originated and gave first circulation to the fabrication that Jake Hamon accidentally shot himself while cleaning a .32 caliber automatic pistol. Ketch is expected to admit on the stand that this story was an untruth, told with the kindly purpose of protecting Hamon from notoriety and announced at a time when he believed Hamon would survive his wound. This much of Ketch's testimony is generally anticipated.

The heart appeal will come in the testimony of two women most concerned with what the verdict will be. The testimony of these two—the defendant, 27, and the slain man's widow, 42.

Twenty or more newspaper correspondents have arrived at Ardmore to report the proceedings. All the press associations, as well as a number of leading Eastern and Texas dailies, are represented, and special telegraph wires have been strung into an ante-chamber of the court room where operators will transmit the evidence almost as rapidly as it is given by the witnesses to newspapers in all parts of the country.

PLANT FEED CROPS—Such as corn, peas, peanuts, sorghum soudan grass. Work eight hours a day—go fishing when you feel like it—visit your wife's kin folks. From present indications no matter what the farmer raises this year it won't be worth much—live economically. 6,000,000 bales of cotton will bring more money than 12,000,000 bales. What Would Happen If Every Farmer Bought Cotton Instead of Planting More?

By P. S. Mangum

I could wish nothing more helpful for the cotton farmer than that he had been with me this past week. I feel sure that if the farmer could become convinced there would be a ten to eleven million bale cotton crop raised this year, and that cotton next fall would not be worth six cents a pound, he would not plant cotton. And, this is why I wished for every farmer who expects to plant cotton this spring, to be with me this past week. I visited in many counties of Central and West Texas where cotton is the one crop. And everywhere, excepting the counties that are organized under the Texas Farm Bureau, there will be fully 90 per cent of a cotton crop planted. I talked with farmers, merchants and bankers, and this is the average estimate. Unless some great and unforeseen change comes about within the next thirty days, the cotton farmer is sure to dig his own financial pit-fall. I could command the words to arouse the farmer to the certain disaster and ruin he is bringing upon himself. I would be happy. But, mere words seem to have such little effect. The farmer who reads these lines, if he does as usual, will not take the trouble to think deeply, much less to act upon them. Still, my sympathies are so strong for the farmer that I feel like pleading right on with him to save himself the great loss that a cotton crop will bring upon him.

I heard an illustration once that speaks the message that I am trying to get across the man who feeds and clothes the world, to the farmer. As the story runs, there was a man living some distance above Niagara Falls on the Niagara River. He had heard much about the Falls below but had never seen them. He was one of those fellows we so often meet who "paddles his own canoe," regardless of the advice and suggestions of his friends. One day he made up his mind to ride down the river in his boat and over the Falls. He had often heard of the danger, but since he had been living near them all his life he had come to feel that this was all talk. So, heedless to the entreaties of his family and friends, he set out down the river. For the first thirty miles down everything was lovely and fine. All signs pointed to a successful trip. And so confident was the man that he hardly noticed the increasing speed of his boat as the current of Niagara River became swifter, and then swifter and ever swifter. Nor did he pay any heed to those along the banks who called out to him to turn his boat and pull for the shore, that he was in great danger, and every minute only carried him closer to his doom. He reasoned to himself, just like so many of us do, that he was experienced with his boat. He had never failed before to put his boat over any place. Besides, he felt that those on the banks were just scared. His mind was so engaged with these thoughts that he had not noticed the increasing roar that is going up from the Falls every second as the flood of the river pitches itself over the Falls into the great abyss and swirl far below. So, before he had realized it he was right upon the Falls, and could see the cloud of mist that is ever going up from the water as it hurls itself over and down upon the crags and rocks below. But the realization of his danger had come too late. No power could save him from going over. His own efforts and cries were soon ended as his boat crashed over the Falls.

Every reader can make his own application of this story. The farmer in the cotton boat today is rowing down the stream of lower prices, the current of which will hurl him into the Falls of loss and bankruptcy. His loss and ruin will be in proportion to the amount of cotton he plants. Unless he takes heed to the warnings of those who are looking ahead into the dangers he is bringing upon himself, and pulls out of the cotton stream before the crop is planted, he will be so far in debt by next January that it will take him years to get back even.

It is my candid opinion that cotton would be seven cents a pound today if planting time wasn't so near at hand. Prices are being held up just to encourage the farmers to plant a good size crop. Just as soon as the crop is planted and there is no turning back for the farmer, the price will drop several cents a pound. There is absolutely nothing to hold the price up but the prospects of a half crop this year, and as soon as the crop is in the ground the prices will drop much lower. If the crop is even a low average, prices will be as low as they were in 1912, 1913 and 1914.

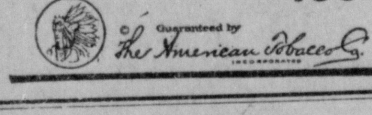

But why plant cotton this year when any farmer can buy just as good cotton as he can raise for less money than he can produce it? Why wouldn't it be more sensible for me to take what money I am going to put into this year's cotton crop and go out on the market today and buy cotton that is already ginned and wrapped? I would not have the worry of the pink boll worm, the boll weevil and either too much or too little rain. I would have the cotton already ginned and housed. Suppose, instead of planting cotton the farmer should buy cotton? What would happen if the farmers themselves suddenly bought up five million bales of cotton? If this year's crop was cut to four million bales and five million bales of the cotton now on the market was taken off, where would the price go?

Instead of there being hundreds and hundreds of millions lost on the cotton now on hand, and possibly a billion or two on this year's crop, there would be a net profit to the farmer. But you say, "this is a pipe dream!" And I agree with you. But why can't the farmer be brought to realize the folly of digging his grave deeper. It is deep enough now. He had better let it rest at its present depth if he isn't going to try to fill it up.

I wish I had the space to discuss here some phases of the cotton situation I have been thinking into and

ALLEN ACADEMY RANK RAISED BY WAR DEPARTMENT

Lieutenant C. R. Miller, professor of military science and tactics, and Commandant of cadets at Allen Academy, is in receipt of a communication from the War Department, informing him of a change in the classification of the school from the fourth class to the second, or from a semi-military to an essentially military institution.

Only colleges which are essentially military and confer degrees belong to class one. The new classification for the Academy implies that the school has met the tests and fulfilled the requirements set by the government for an essentially military preparatory school.

The progress made in military training Allen Academy under the supervision of Lieut. Miller, has been remarkable. That the Allen boys are receiving most excellent training is the judgment of every one sent to inspect the school.

Col. A. S. Williams, head of the R. O. T. C. for the Southwest Division (the 8th corps) has expressed his gratification at the progress made by the Academy in developing a splendid junior R. O. T. C. unit. On the occasion of his recent visit he said the Academy had the largest unit, also, of all the preparatory schools in its territory, which covers five states.

Col. Williams was especially pleased with Allen Academy's band of nearly thirty pieces, and expressed a desire to have the band go to the R. O. T. C. summer training camp in Colorado.

A. & M. WINS FROM STATE UNIVERSITY CLINCHING TITLE

DWYER'S SENSATIONAL PLAYING LARGELY RESPONSIBLE FOR VICTORY.

(Waco News-Tribune)

Austin, Texas, March 4.—The sensational playing of Dwyer, star guard for the A. and M. basketball team enabled that club to stage a comeback and defeat the University five in a contest that had as its stake the intercollegiate championship of Texas. The final score was 18 to 13. The local team fought valiantly all the way through but was forced to give way to the systematic efforts of Coach Bible's powerful combination.

Like the game the night before both teams showed sensational defensive ability. The playing of McCullough of Varsity was second only to that of Dwyer, and it is reasonably certain that both men have won a place at guard on the mythical all-state selection. Peyton also played a bang-up game for the University team.

Had Varsity won the game the closing contest of the season for the state school, it would have gone ahead of the Aggies in the conference standing for the first time this season. One of the largest crowds that ever saw a basketball game in Austin was on hand for the contest.

With the loss of this game Baylor university for the first time this season gains undisputed possession of second place in the conference standing while Belmont's team is relegated to the third position.

The Aggies have two more conference games to play with the S. M. U. five at Dallas. These games, however, will have no result on the championship race, so far as the University is concerned. However, should the Mustangs achieve the seemingly impossible and win both games from Eble's five, then the Baylor team would go into a tie with the Aggies for first place.

Here is the standing to date:
A. and M. 10 8 2 .800
Baylor 12 8 4 .667
Varsity 14 9 5 .652
Rice 13 4 9 .307
S. M. U. 9 0 9 .000

NO ALL-STATE SELECTION SAYS COACH DEX BIBLE

Dexter Bible, coach of the Texas Aggie basketball team, probable champion of the Southwestern conference for the second consecutive year, has no all-state choice of a five to make. Bible has consistently refused to name all-star teams in any sport, although he has developed champions in many branches.

"There are many excellent basketball players on State teams," Bible said yesterday, on his arrival in Dallas, "and I have not seen all of the teams in action. Forbes, Dwyer and Hartung of the Agricultural and Mechanical College team have had a wonderful season. McCullough of Texas is an excellent guard. But Rice, Southern Methodist University, and other teams have players that deserve consideration, and I would not, under any conditions, nominate a team. Griner of S. M. U. played an especially good game against our team."

Bible says that the two games played at Texas Tuesday and Wednesday nights were even harder fought than the score indicates. In view of these two stiff games and a night trip from Austin to Dallas, Bible expected to have trouble with S. M. U.

"The Mustangs have a better team than they are given credit for in view of their reverses," said the Aggie mentor. "Most of their defeats have been by a few points. They certainly put up a strong game against us."

The Texas Aggies close their season with tonight's game with S. M. U. Bible will devote most of his time to the track team, though he will take over baseball after Coach Sentell assumes his umpire duties with the Texas League on April 15.

The Aggies will meet Baylor on next year's basketball schedule, according to Bible, who says that the out-of-state trip will be abandoned.

DOWNARD-SANDERS.

Hiram T. Downard and Miss Lillie Fay Sanders were united in marriage at the home of Dr. John A. Held on Saturday evening, Dr. Held officiating. The marriage came unawares to the many friends of the young couple, but, sincere good wishes are not lessened, because of the surprise, for no young people in Bryan enjoy more universal esteem and admiration than these two. The wedding was planned for June, but, on account of sickness in the family of the bride, the date was changed, and the happy union, solemnized on Saturday evening as above stated.

The bride is the accomplished daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. R. Sanders, and one of Bryan's noblest and most deserving young women. The groom, a son of Mr. and Mrs. R. W. Downard, has also lived in Bryan all his life and is a splendid Christian young man, with a bright future in the business and social world. A. & M. STOCK ARE WINNERS TUESDAY

LIVELY COMPETITION DEVELOPS BETWEEN OKLAHOMA AND TEXAS SCHOOLS

Druid of Forth Worth, owned by R. V. Colbert & Son of Stamford, Texas, was declared grand champion Hereford bull of the Southwestern Exposition and Fat Stock Show, Tuesday. The Stamford entry also won first prize in the junior bull class. In the steer events Good Chance, owned by Texas A. & M. College, won the championship for Hereford steers of all classes. The Texas institution also carried off first honors in the senior and junior yearling steer classes.

Its rival, the Oklahoma A. & M., won the junior calf steer event, and likewise the first money in the senior calf steer class. Both colleges were also winners in the Aberdeen Angus classes judged Tuesday afternoon. Oklahoma's Engraved won first place in the senior calf steer class, while Pride's Defender First, was first in the senior yearling steer event, J. C. Simpson of Muskogee, Okla., carried off the junior yearling steer, the junior calf steer and his Simpson's Lad was adjudged champion steer of the division.

As a cowpuncher Tris Speaker is a fine baseball manager, the big crowd at Tuesday's matinee Rodeo decided after the Cleveland manager had given an exhibition of his skill with the rope.

Speaker was an added entry in the calf roping contest. He dashed into the arena in true Wild West style, but his rope failed to land where the calf was and after two attempts Speaker retired from the contest.

"I'm going to catch one before the week is out, though," he promised friends who "kidded" him after his performance.

MOTION FOR CONTINUANCE IN WHITE CASE OVERRULED

Application for continuance in the case of State of Texas vs. Onie White and Horace White, jointly charged with the killing of Dr. Bev. Harrison at Bedias and which was transferred to Brazos county from Grimes county on a change of venue, was overruled when the court convened at 1:30 this afternoon. Continuance was asked on the ground that several witnesses for the defense were not present. The prosecution had announced readiness for trial.

A large array of legal talent is gathered to take part in the case which is expected to be closely contested. County Attorney Minkert is assisted in the prosecution by T. P. Buffington and John Mathis of Houston. Judge Taubee of Georgetown and C. B. Hudson of Bryan. The defense is represented by E. A. Berry of Houston, Frank Brigrance and Haynes Shannon of Navasota, H. S. Morehead of Franklin and Henderson and Ransom of Bryan.

HOUSE ENGROSSES WEST TEXAS A. & M. BILL BY 68 TO 48

Appropriation of $50,000 Made For Purchasing Site of at Least 1000 Acres—A. & M. Directors to Locate Site and Report to Legislature—Bill Providing no Mechanical Department Defeated

(Dallas News Special)

Austin, Texas, March 4.—The demands of the people of West Texas for an Agricultural and Mechanical College were granted in a measure by the House Thursday afternoon by the engrossment of a bill providing for the establishment of such an institution west of the 98th meridian and north of the 29th parallel.

The bill engrossed was the Cox bill, which is practically the same as the measure passed by the Thirty-Fifth Legislature and repealed by the following Legislature after the school had been located at Abilene. Vote on engrossment was 68 to 48. Mr. Cox, author of the bill, resides in Abilene.

$50,000 APPROPRIATED.

The board of directors of A. and M. College are to locate the school and report to the Thirty-Eighth Legislature, which will provide for the construction of buildings and further establishment of the college. An appropriation of $50,000 is made for purchasing the site, which is to comprise at least 1,000 acres.

An amendment by Mr. Fly of Gonzales was adopted providing that if the Thirty-Eighth Legislature fails to approve the location and the report of the A. and M. regents, the conditional contract made for the site is to become null and void.

GOVERNED BY DIRECTORS.

The school to be established under the provisions of the Cox bill is to be an agricultural and mechanical college of the first class, to be governed by the board of directors of the present A. and M. College. It is intended to make the West Texas A. and M. College a duplicate of the present A. and M. College, Mr. Cox said.

The bill originally asked for by the West Texas delegation provided for an A. and M. College to be located at once by the Governor, Lieutenant Governor, the Speaker of the House, Attorney General and Chairman of the State Board of Control. Fear was expressed by some of the West Texans that the Cox bill will further delay the establishment of the school by again placing the whole question before another Legislature.

Two other measures in addition to the original bill were before the House in the form of substitutes. One was the Cox bill which was adopted. The other was offered by H. B. Hill of Wheeler county and provided for a purely agricultural college with no mechanical department. The school was to be located by a commission composed of the Governor, Lieutenant Governor, Speaker of the House, Attorney General and Commissioner of Agriculture.

Cox Bill Preferred.

The House adopted the Cox bill in preference to the Hill measure by a vote of 80 to 34. In voting for the Cox substitute, Mr. Rosser of Scurry county, one of those who led the fight for the West Texas measure, gave his reasons for voting in this way and said he believed the Cox substitute gives the enemies of the West Texas school a chance to sidetrack the measure. He believes the Hill substitute would have been adopted had the Cox bill not been offered. It is interesting to note in this connection that both Mr. Rosser and Mr. Cox are candidates for the State Senate to succeed Senator Russell, resigned.

Mr. Rosser gave his reasons for voting for the Cox bill as follows: "I am voting for the Cox substitute for the reason that, since the substitute has been offered, it is my opinion that the Legislature will vote for no greater appropriation than is carried in that substitute."

"It is my opinion that this Legislature should at this time pass the Hill substitute and would have done so had not the Cox substitute been offered. The Cox substitute gave the enemies of the West Texas school a chance to sidetrack the measure."

"I had rather have the Cox than no recognition for West Texas, but think the substitute should not have been offered."

Contract Null and Void.

In the course of the debate, Mr. Satterwhite of Carson county expressed the opinion that under the Cox bill the Thirty-Eighth Legislature would be bound to provide for the establishment of the West Texas school. However, an amendment was adopted providing that if the Legislature failed to approve the location submitted, a contract for a location would be null and void.

Mr. Baldwin of Lubbock county, the only member from West Texas who voted against the bill on engrossment, gave as his reason that he believed the bill should provide for the submission to the next Legislature of three different locations, one of which should be selected by the Legislature.

Mr. Veatch, of Johnson county, single-handed, led the fight against the West Texas College on the floor of the House. He announced he was not an enemy of that section, and, in fact, had land interests in several West Texas counties, but that he did not consider this an opportune time to expend money for such a school.

"I don't believe there is an immediate necessity for the agricultural college," he said. "We have the two normals in West Texas on our hands. I don't believe in dealing in future expenditures which it may be impossible to meet. We may soon get in the fix of Oklahoma, where Governor Williams vetoed the appropriations of six institutions and put them out of business."

Matter of Economic Policy.

"When the time comes we should have a full-fledged agricultural college in the West. We should not build the foundation before we have the money to build the entire structure. Here we are going to teach the farmers how to grow more stuff when we can't even sell our products we raise now. It is a matter of economic policy with me. The democratic party at the Fort Worth convention thought the same as I do. The people of West Texas are anxious to get their hook in the Legislature and bind

A sharp exchange ensued between Mr. Rosser and Mr. Veatch. Mr. Rosser asked if he believed it right for the people of West Texas to pay taxes to educate the children of East Texas. Mr. Veatch said that if this principle held good, a man without children should not pay taxes to be used by the children of another man.

Mr. Veatch further contended that the agricultural experiment stations in West Texas meet the needs of that section. He said there were five of them in West Texas, at Chillicothe, Lubbock, Spur, Pecos and Sonora.

Work of Experiment Stations.

Replying to Mr. Rosser's question whether these stations would take the place of an education institution, Mr. Veatch said they were doing the basic work of agriculture, and that if they were cut down it would strike at the very heart of agricultural work in Texas. He said those seeking appropriations for their support asserted they would do more work than any A. and M. College could.

He listed the State institutions located in West Texas, naming the epileptic colony at Abilene, tubercular sanatorium at Carlsbad and lunatic asylum at Wichita Falls.

Mr. Darroch of Mills county called to the chair during the debate on the West Texas measure. The previous question was ordered on the Cox amendment.

Mr. Fly offered an amendment to the Cox substitute providing that if the succeeding Legislature fails to approve the location the contract be null and void. Mr. Veatch objected to the amendment. Mr. Fly then told him that he had lost a vote by doing so, as he intended to vote for the bill if his amendment was not considered. Mr. Veatch withdrew his objection, but objection was made by Mr. Teer, so the Fly amendment could not be considered at this time, as the previous question had been ordered.

More Sectional Schools.

Mr. Cox, speaking for his amendment, said he agreed with other speakers that it had been a dark day for Texas when the act establishing a West Texas college was repealed by the Thirty-sixth Legislature. He said that but for this repeal the college would have been in operation six years earlier than it can possibly be started even if the law is passed now.

He yielded the remainder of his time to Mr. Thompson of Red River, who said he had always stood for more State educational institutions. He believed the higher educational institutions should be carried to the people. His idea was that more sectional colleges should be established rather than so much money expended for the present colleges. He said he was trying to look at Texas from Texline to Galveston, instead of from a narrow viewpoint.

Mr. Hill spoke briefly for engrossment of the measure, yielding his closing time to John Davis of Dallas, who urged its adoption. It was then engrossed by a vote of 68 to 48.

Joe Kyle Barnett was in the city on business today, from his farm home on route 6.

Nelson Dulaney went to Houston Monday, where he was called to serve on the Federal jury. Mrs. Dulaney will go to Houston this afternoon to spend the week while her husband is there.

What Would Happen If Every Farmer Bought Cotton Instead of Planting More?

By P. S. Mansum

I could wish nothing more helpful for the cotton farmer than that he had been with me this past week. I feel sure that if the farmer could become convinced there would be a ten to eleven million bale cotton crop raised this year, and that cotton next fall would not be worth six cents a pound, he would not plant cotton. And, this is why I wished for every farmer who expects to plant cotton this spring, to be with me this past week. I visited in many counties of Central and West Texas where cotton is the one crop. And everywhere, excepting the counties that are organized under the Texas Farm Bureau, there will be fully 90 per cent of a cotton crop planted. I talked with farmers, merchants and bankers, and this is the average estimate. Unless some great and unforeseen change comes about within the next thirty days, the cotton farmer is sure to dig his own financial pit-fall. I could command the words to arouse the farmer to the certain disaster and ruin he is bringing upon himself. I would be happy. But, mere words seem to have such little effect. The farmer who reads these lines, if he does as usual, will not take the trouble to think deeply, much less to act upon them. Still, my sympathies are so strong for the farmer that I feel like pleading right on with him to save himself the great loss that a cotton crop will bring upon him.

I heard an illustration once that speaks the message that I am trying to get across the man who feeds and clothes the world, to the farmer. As the story runs, there was a man living some distance above Niagara Falls on the Niagara River. He had heard much about the Falls below but had never seen them. He was one of those fellows we so often meet who "paddles his own canoe," regardless of the advice and suggestions of his friends. One day he made up his mind to ride down the river in his boat and over the Falls. He had often heard of the danger, but since he had been living near them all his life he had come to feel that this was all talk. So, heedless to the entreaties of his family and friends, he set out down the river. For the first thirty miles down everything was lovely and fine. All signs pointed to a successful trip. And so confident was the man that he hardly noticed the increasing speed of his boat as the current of Niagara River became swifter, and then swifter and ever swifter. Nor did he pay any heed to those along the banks who called out to him to turn his boat and pull for the shore, that he was in great danger, and every minute only carried him closer to his doom. He reasoned to himself, just like so many of us do, that he was experienced with his boat. He had never failed before to put his boat over any place. Besides, he felt that those on the banks were just scared. His mind was so engorged with these thoughts that he had not noticed the increasing roar that is going up from the Falls every second as the flood of the river pitches itself over the Falls into the great abyss and swirl far below. So, before he had realized it he was right upon the Falls, and could see the cloud of mist that is ever going up from the water as it hurries itself over and down upon the crags and rocks below. But the realization of his danger had come too late. No power could save him from going over. His own efforts and cries were soon ended as his boat crashed over the Falls.

Every reader can make his own application of this story. The farmer in the cotton boat today is rowing down the stream of lower prices, the current of which will hurl him into the Falls of loss and bankruptcy. His loss and ruin will be in proportion to the amount of cotton he plants. Unless he takes heed to the warnings of those who are looking ahead into the dangers he is bringing upon himself, and pulls out of the cotton stream before the crop is planted, he will be so far in debt by next January that it will take him years to get back even.

It is my candid opinion that cotton would be seven cents a pound today if planting time wasn't so near at hand. Prices are being held up just to encourage the farmers to plant a good size crop. Just as soon as the crop is planted and there is no turning back for the farmer, the price will drop several cents a pound. There is absolutely nothing to hold the price up but the prospects of a half crop this year, and as soon as the crop is in the ground the prices will drop much lower. If the crop is even a low average, prices will be as low as they were in 1912, 1913 and 1914.

But why plant cotton this year when any farmer can buy just as good cotton as he can raise for less money than he can produce it? Why wouldn't it be more sensible for me to take what money I am going to put into this year's cotton crop and go out on the market today and buy cotton that is already ginned and wrapped? I would not have the worry of the pink boll worm, the boll weevil and either too much or too little rain. I would have the cotton already ginned and housed. Suppose, instead of planting cotton the farmer should buy cotton? What would happen if the farmers themselves suddenly bought up five million bales of cotton? If this year's crop was cut to four million bales and five million bales of the cotton now on the market was taken off, where would the price go?

Instead of there being hundreds and hundreds of millions lost on the cotton now on hand, and possibly a billion or two on this year's crop, there would be a net profit to the farmer. But you say, "this is a pipe dream!" And I agree with you. But why can't the farmer be brought to realize the folly of digging his grave deeper. It is deep enough now. He had better let it rest at its present depth if he isn't going to try to fill it up.

I wish I had the space to discuss here some phases of the cotton situation I have been thinking into and investigating. One of these is "What should the price of cotton be today with the present prices of cotton goods?" But you can answer this to your own satisfaction if you will take some dry goods and weigh them and then figure what the difference in the cost of the goods would be when made of ten cent and thirty cent cotton. You will find that a cotton suit shouldn't cost over a dollar more when made of thirty cent cotton instead of ten cent cotton. And, other goods in proportion. But, I have digressed from my line of discussion. I started out to emphasize co-operation and what it will mean to the farmer.

The only solution to the farmer's problem lies in a national organization. This organization must be of the farmer, by the farmer and for the farmer. It must be kept clear of politics, graft, self-seekers and dead-weights. It must realize the national scope of its work, not undertake more than it can accomplish, and secure the aid of the banker and the merchant.

This is why the farm bureau is meeting with such success. It is the first time the farmer has ever had an opportunity to really cooperate in a practical way. The farmer's problem is nation wide, yes, world wide, in its scope, and this is the first time it has been approached from a world-wide standpoint, and by those who are farmers in spirit and reality, whose interests are his interests, and whose aim is devoid of any form or taint of selfishness, and whose vision is that vision that sees things as a whole as well as in all its parts. Cooperation is the farmers' salvation. Yesterday, as I sat talking to Mr. Moser in Dallas, Texas Secretary of the Federal Farm Bureau, I got a new vision of what cooperation was to mean. And it is every whit practical cooperation. It is that form of cooperation that really influences world markets as well as world supplies and which will enable the farmer to, for the first time, actually have a voice in the things which so vitally affect him. It is indeed encouraging to know that the Farm Bureau is organized in forty-five states with a membership now of well above the one and a half million mark, that thirty of the best counties of Texas are organized with thirty thousand members. Already the Farm Bureau is the mightiest organization in the world if it just knew it. It is mighty more in its potential possibilities than in its present size. And with the tremendous momentum the organization has already gained it will soon be able to work out the problems of the farmers. And short-sighted indeed, and blind to his own interest will be the farmer who does not, not only join, but give the Bureau every bit of the help and co-operation he is capable of rendering. This is the first time the farmer has a world-wide solution to his actual needs offered him. And let us all pray and work together to break down the last remnant of prejudice any farmer may have towards the organization. It is the farmers' lifeboat. In it lies his salvation. Should it fail the farmer would be set back a hundred years. But it is up to the individual farmer. Let's all get the spirit and help.

Every wise merchant will co-operate fully, for as the farmer prospers so will he. The Bureau has no idea of usurping the field of the merchant, and merchant who gives full support in season and out of season will be building for himself as well as the farmer. The banker seems to be realizing there is a greater field for him in giving every aid possible than in withholding his support. It will open up new possibilities for him, for he will be building for greater business. When production of all kinds is on a stable basis and is expanding it is then that we all prosper with the producer. And this is the new vision of cooperation as held by the leaders of the Farm Bureau as well as the bankers and merchants. This vision has so widened as to see the intricate inter-relationship of farming with every other activity. And may this new vision take hold of us and may we get the unselfish view of service one to the other, for the greatest among us are the least selfish and the wisest in the sympathies and the quickest in service.

WAR DEPARTMENT

Lieutenant C. R. Miller, professor of military science and tactics, and Commandant of cadets at Allen Academy, is in receipt of a communication from the War Department, informing him of a change in the classification of the school from the fourth class to the second, or from a semi-military to an essentially military institution.

Only colleges which are essentially military and confer degrees belong to class one. The new classification for the Academy implies that the school has met the tests and fulfilled the requirements set by the government for an essentially military preparatory school.

The progress made in military training Allen Academy under the supervision of Lieut. Miller, has been remarkable. That the Allen boys are receiving most excellent training is the judgment of every one sent to inspect the school.

Col. A. S. Williams, head of the R. O. T. C. for the Southwestern Division (the 8th corps) has expressed his gratification at the progress made by the Academy in developing a splendid junior R. O. T. C. unit. On the occasion of his recent visit he said the Academy had the largest unit, also, of all preparatory schools in its territory, which covers five states.

Col. Williams was especially pleased with Allen Academy's band of nearly thirty pieces, and expressed a desire to have the band go to the R. O. T. C. summer training camp in Colorado.

A. & M. WINS FROM STATE UNIVERSITY CLINCHING TITLE

DWYER'S SENSATIONAL PLAYING LARGELY RESPONSIBLE FOR VICTORY.

(Waco News-Tribune)
Austin, Texas, March 4.—The sensational playing of Dwyer, star guard for the A. & M. basketball team enabled that club to stage a comeback and defeat the University five in a contest that had as its stake the intercollegiate championship of Texas. The final score was 18 to 13. The local team fought valiantly all the way through but was forced to give way to the systematic efforts of Coach Bible's powerful combination.

Like the game the night before both teams showed sensational defensive ability. The playing of McCullough of Varsity was second only to that of Dwyer, and it is reasonably certain that both men have won a place at guard on the mythical all-state selection. Peyton also played a bang-up game for the University team.

Had Varsity won the game the closing contest of the season for the state school, it would have gone ahead of the Aggies in the conference standing for the first time this season. One of the largest crowds that ever saw a basketball game in Austin was on hand for the contest.

With the loss of this game Baylor university for the first time this season gains undisputed possession of the second place in the conference standing while Belmont's team is relegated to the third position.

The Aggies have two more conference games to play with the S. M. U. of five at Dallas. These games, however, will have no result on the championship race, so far as the University is concerned. However, should the Mustangs achieve the seemingly impossible and win both games from Bible's five, then the Baylor team would go into a tie with the Aggies for first place.

Here is the standing to date:
A. and M. 10 8 2 .800
Baylor 12 8 4 .667
Varsity 14 9 5 .652
Rice 13 4 9 .397
S. M. U. 9 0 9 .000

NO ALL-STATE SELECTION SAYS COACH DEX BIBLE

Dexter Bible, coach of the Texas Aggie basketball team, probable champions of the Southwestern conference for the second consecutive year, has no all-State choice of a five to make. Bible has consistently refused to name all-star teams in any sport, although he has developed champions in many branches.

"There are many excellent basketball players on State teams," Bible said yesterday, on his arrival in Dallas, "and I have not seen all of the teams in action. Forbes, Dwyer and Hartung of the Agricultural and Mechanical College team have had a wonderful season. McCullough of Texas is an excellent guard. But Rice, Southern Methodist University, and other teams have players that deserve consideration, and I would not, under any conditions, nominate a team. Griner of S. M. U. played an especially good game against our team."

Bible says that the two games played at Texas Tuesday and Wednesday nights were even harder fought than the score indicates. In view of these two stiff games and a night trip from Austin to Dallas, Bible expected to have trouble with S. M. U.

"The Mustangs have a better team than they are given credit for in view of their reverses," said the Aggie mentor. "Most of their defeats have been by a few points. They certainly put up a strong game against us."

The Texas Aggies close their season with tonight's game with S. M. U. Bible will devote most of his time to the track team, though he will take over baseball after Coach Sentell assumes his umpire duties with the Texas League on April 15.

The Aggies will meet Baylor on next year's basketball schedule, according to Bible, who says that the out-of-State trip will be abandoned.

LIVELY COMPETITION DEVELOPED BETWEEN OKLAHOMA AND TEXAS SCHOOLS

Druid of Forth Worth, owned by R. V. Colbert & Son of Stamford, Texas, was declared grand champion Hereford bull of the Southwestern Exposition and Fair Stock Show, Tuesday. The Stamford entry also won first prize in the junior bull class. In the steer events Good Chance, owned by Texas A. & M. College, won the championship for Hereford steers of all classes. The Texas institution also carried off first honors in the senior and junior yearling steer classes.

Its rival, the Oklahoma A. & M., won the junior calf steer event, and likewise the first money in the senior calf steer class. Both colleges were also winners in the Aberdeen Angus classes judged Tuesday afternoon. Oklahoma's Engraved won first place in the senior calf steer class, while Pride's Defender First, was first in the senior yearling steer event, J. C. Simpson of Muskogee, Okla., carried off the junior yearling steer, the junior calf steer and his Simpson's Lad was adjudged champion steer of the division.

As a cowpuncher Tris Speaker is a fine baseball manager, the big crowd at Tuesday's matinee Rodeo decided after the Cleveland manager had given an exhibition of his skill with the rope.

Speaker was an added entry in the calf roping contest. He dashed into the arena in true Wild West style, but his rope failed to land where the calf was and after two attempts Speaker retired from the contest. "I'm going to catch one before the week is out, though," he promised friends who "kidded" him after his performance.

Appropriation of $50,000 Made For Purchasing Site of at Least 1000 Acres—A. & M. Directors to Locate Site and Report to Legislature—Bill Providing no Mechanical Department Defeated

(Dallas News Special)
Austin, Texas, March 4.—The demands of the people of West Texas for an Agricultural and Mechanical College were granted in a measure by the House Thursday afternoon by the engrossment of a bill providing for the establishment of such an institution west of the 98th meridian and north of the 29th parallel.

The bill engrossed was the Cox bill, which is practically the same as the measure passed by the Thirty-Fifth Legislature and repealed by the following Legislature after the school had been located at Abilene. Vote on engrossment was 68 to 48. Mr. Cox, author of the bill, resides in Abilene.

$50,000 APPROPRIATED.
The board of directors of A. and M. College are to locate the school and report to the Thirty-Eighth Legislature, which will provide for the construction of buildings and further establishment of the college. An appropriation of $50,000 is made for purchasing the site, which is to comprise at least 1,000 acres.

An amendment by Mr. Fly of Gonzales was adopted providing that if the Thirty-Eighth Legislature fails to approve the location and the report of the A. and M. regents, the conditional contract made for the site is to become null and void.

GOVERNED BY DIRECTORS.
The school to be established under the provisions of the Cox bill is to be an agricultural and mechanical college of the first class, to be governed by the board of directors of the present A. and M. College. It is intended to make the West Texas A. and M. College a duplicate of the present A. and M. College, Mr. Cox said.

The bill originally asked for by the West Texas delegation provided for an A. and M. College to be located at once by the Governor, Lieutenant Governor, the Speaker of the House, Attorney General and Chairman of the State Board of Control. Fear was expressed by some of the West Texans that the Cox bill will further delay the establishment of the school by again placing the whole question before another Legislature.

Two other measures in addition to them to do something." The original bill were before the House in the form of substitutes. One was the Cox bill which was adopted. The other was offered by H. B. Hill of Wheeler county and provided for a purely agricultural college with no mechanical department. The school was to be located by a commission composed of the Governor, Lieutenant Governor, Speaker of the House, Attorney General and Commissioner of Agriculture.

Cox Bill Preferred.
The House adopted the Cox bill in preference to the Hill measure by a vote of 80 to 34. In voting for the Cox substitute, Mr. Rosser of Scurry county, one of those who led the fight for the West Texas measure, gave his reasons for voting in this way and said he believed the Cox substitute gives the enemies of the West Texas school a chance to sidetrack the measure. He believes the Hill substitute would have been adopted had the Cox bill not been offered. It is interesting to note in this connection that both Mr. Rosser and Mr. Cox are candidates for the State Senate to succeed Senator Russell, resigned.

Mr. Rosser gave his reasons for voting for the Cox bill as follows: "I am voting for the Cox substitute for the reason that, since the substitute has been offered, it is my opinion that the Legislature will vote for no greater appropriation than is carried in that substitute. "It is my opinion that this Legislature should at this time pass the Hill substitute and would have done so had not the Cox substitute been offered. The Cox substitute gave the enemies of the West Texas school a chance to sidetrack the measure. "I had rather have the Cox than no recognition for West Texas, but think the substitute should not have been offered."

Contract Null and Void.
In the course of the debate, Mr. Satterwhite of Carson county expressed the opinion that under the Cox bill the Thirty-Eighth Legislature would be bound to provide for the establishment of the West Texas school. However, an amendment was adopted providing that if the Legislature failed to approve the location submitted, a contract for a location would be null and void.

Mr. Baldwin of Lubbock county, the only member from West Texas who voted against the bill on engrossment, gave as his reason that he believed the bill should provide for the submission to the next Legislature of three different locations, one of which should be selected by the Legislature. Mr. Veatch, of Johnson county, single-handed, led the fight against the West Texas College on the floor of the House. He announced he was not an enemy of that section, and, in fact, had land interests in several West Texas counties, but that he did not consider this an opportune time to expend money for such a school. "I don't believe there is an immediate necessity for the agricultural college," he said. "We have the two normals in West Texas on our hands. I don't believe in dealing in future expenditures which it may be impossible to meet. We may soon get in the fix of Oklahoma, where Governor Williams vetoed the appropriations of six institutions and put them out of business."

Matter of Economic Policy.
"When the time comes we should have a full-fledged agricultural college in the West. We should not build the foundation before we have the money to build the entire structure. Here we are going to teach the farmers how to grow more stuff when we can't even sell our products we raise now. It is a matter of economic policy with me. The democratic party at the Fort Worth convention thought the same as I do. The people of West Texas are anxious to get their hook in the Legislature and bind them."

Mr. Hill spoke briefly for engrossment of the measure, yielding his closing time to John Davis of Dallas, who urged its adoption. It was then engrossed by a vote of 68 to 48.

Joe Kyle Barnett was in the city on business today, from his farm home on route 6.

Nelson Dulaney went to Houston Monday, where he was called to serve on the Federal jury. Mrs. Dulaney will go to Houston this afternoon to spend the week while her husband is there.

SENATE BODY CONCLUDES A. & M. HAZING INQUIRY

Officials of College Testify, Present Moral Tone of Institution Highest They Have Known.

(Dallas News Special)

Austin, Texas, March 5.—Details of the organization and administration of discipline of the Agriculture and Mechanical College of Texas were given the senate hazing committee by Dr. W. D. Bizzell, president, and Major Ike Ashburn, commander of the college, in the final round of the hazing investigation. Both officials of the college stated they were surprised at the universality of padding, as developed by the committee's investigation, but expressed a confident belief that no student had been brutally treated.

That hazing is on the decrease was the statement of President Bizzell. "I hate the practice like a snake and have fought it during my administration without making any concessions. In fact, I have been so bitter in my opposition to it that many people have come to call me a 'crann' on that subject, at least. The law has been explained from time to time and I have adopted many means of fighting the practice. But, gentlemen, if your committee, with the power of the State behind you and the ability to administer oaths, could not adduce information from boys who have left the college from one cause or another, on which to involve boys who have been guilty of this practice, how do you think the college authorities, with lesser powers than yours, can accomplish that end?"

That he never had seen a fish killer until this investigation began and that he had never heard of the term until last September was one of the statements of the commandant. He explained to the committee that the seniors did not run the college, as had been stated by Senator Parr, but that the senior cadet officers did exercise supervision over the men under their command. All of their powers were restricted to recommendations made to the commandant for his approval or disapproval.

Both Dr. Bizzell and Major Ashburn declared the general moral tone of the college is higher now than at any previous time in the history of their connection with the college. They hold the opinion, they told the committee, that padding could be entirely eliminated as the students had come to feel the reports circulated by some boys on that account were greatly injuring the institution. Both characterized the loyalty of the student body as wonderful.

Dr. Otto Ehlinger, summoned as a witness, succumbed to heart failure last Monday. He had been called at the instance of Senator Parr. The committee report will be filed within the next few days.

MRS. ALICE GRESHAM DODD, mother of first American soldier killed in France, who gives entire credit for recovery of her health to the well-known medicine, Tanlac.

The following remarkable statement was made recently by Mrs. Alice Gresham Dodd, the mother of Corporal Jas. B. Gresham, who was the first American soldier killed in France. The statement was made at the Gresham Memorial Home, which was presented to her by the patriotic people of Indiana as an evidence of their appreciation of the services rendered to his country by her son.

The shock of her son's death resulted in a serious breakdown in Mrs. Dodd's health, but every one will learn with interest and pleasure that she is now in splendid health again. Mrs. Dodd gives the entire credit for her recovery to the celebrated medicine, Tanlac.

She said: "After my dear boy's death I had a general breakdown in health. At first it was just indigestion. My food would upset me and I had to diet myself very carefully. I also had rheumatism with severe pains in my shoulders, back and arms and at times I would suffer greatly, and my joints would become swollen and stiff. I was hardly able to do but very little about the house and at times could not even cook a meal. I became very nervous and restless and at night would lie awake for hours."

"A friend of mine advised me to try Tanlac. I am glad I did, for it proved to be the best medicine I have ever taken. It soon gave me a splendid appetite and relieved me entirely of indigestion. My rheumatism also disappeared and I am now able to do my housework with the greatest ease. My nerves are steady and my strength is better than in years. I shall always be grateful for what Tanlac has done for me."

Tanlac is sold in Bryan by N. A. Stewart and all leading druggists.

LUCKY STRIKE CIGARETTE

Secretary Eberstadt, returned this morning from Calvert where he went to address the Chamber of Commerce at their annual meeting last night.

Come and hear Mrs. Maggie Barry talk at the Health Center Thursday afternoon, 2 o'clock on "Posture and Health."

Harvey, Tex., March 2.—Sunday morning was a sad one for our community. When the news was gently spread that Tracy Williams was dead many of us had not heard that he was seriously sick and it seemed to sad to be true. Tracy was nearly fifteen years old. A boy with a most amiable disposition, a kind and devoted son and affectionate brother. He was a constant and faithful member of the Free Will Baptist church and a regular attendant. He had been trained by a devout mother from early infancy to love God and the church. His presence there will be sadly missed. It was never our privilege to know a more promising boy. A typical little gentleman so free from all vicious habits so dependable and business like too. A real man beyond his years. No wonder his parents are so bowed down with grief. Their eyes are too dim with tears to see God's hand in it all now, but we hope some day through faith they will see and understand why God called him to his heavenly home so young and say "it is well."

School adjourned Monday morning out of respect to him and at 10 o'clock a.m. amidst a large concourse of loving friends and kindred he was laid to rest under the beautiful old oaks in Bethel cemetery by the side of his two little brothers and sister. Rev. Chas. Bullock officiating. The pall bearers consisted of his boy friends near his age. Sam and Aubrey Pate, Ira and Otis Kelley, Grady Kirkanon and Edgar Peters Jr. I never saw more genuine and general demonstration of grief than was shown at Tracy's funeral for he was beloved by all who knew him. Many beautiful floral offerings attested the love and sympathy of friends and kindred. Who knows but that through the death of this fine lovable boy greater good may arise than if he had lived to maturity. The body may die, but the influence of a good life lives on forever.

Alta Williams was too sick to attend her brother's funeral and is still confined to bed with measles. Little Harry Wayne, the three year old brother is also quite sick with it.

Eunice Graham is sick this week with measles, in fact it is a regular epidemic here at present.

Mr. and Mrs. Robt. Etheridge have a fine boy about two weeks old named Richard Calvin.

Requests has been made to the war department by Mr. and Mrs. Jno. Cyess to have the body of their son Chester Bruce, who died in the service in France, brought home for reinterment. Orders were given by the war department to remove the body from its present burial place to a national burying in France or to be sent home if the parents so desire, so they have decided in favor of home.

A very heavy rain fell here yesterday afternoon and as the soil is almost too wet already for plowing, this rain will retard farming for several days.

We are glad to note in Wednesday Eagle that Thurston Etheridge won the prize for the best essay on the Farmer Boy's last summer trip. Thurston now lives near Coleview, Mr. and Mrs. Fayette Etheridge should be congratulated. Thurston is a fine boy and full of ambition.

Harvey, Tex., March 9.—Our part of the country is beginning to look beautiful now, since spring is opening in all her verdant beauty; and these of hills are clothed in their fresh green dresses, ornamented here and there with the snowy blossoms of hawthorn and black haw; the latter is beautiful enough for any bride's bouquet while growing on the sides of the little rivulets the red birds add a lovely glow of color, like immense bouquets of pink sweet peas, not a green leaf on them till through blooming while here and there under the old moss covered trees a certain variety of yaupon is exquisitely beautiful with its new coat of tender green leaves amidst its wealth of bright scarlet winter berries. You town people don't know what you miss of the natural beauties of mother earth at this season.

Farmers are rushing the plow and planting corn now and welcome every sunny day.

Mrs. Green Buchanan was taken quite suddenly sick Saturday but is much improved now.

SENATE BODY CONCLUDES A. & M. HAZING INQUIRY

Officials of College Testify Present Moral Tone of Institution Highest They Have Known.

(Dallas News Special)

Austin, Texas, March 5.—Details of the organization and administration of discipline of the Agriculture and Mechanical College of Texas were given the Senate hazing committee by Dr. W. D. Bizzell, president, and Major Ike Ashburn, commandant of the College, in the final round of the hazing investigation. Both officials of the College stated they were surprised at the universality of padding, as developed by the committee's investigation, but expressed a confident belief that no student had been brutally treated.

"That hazing is on the decrease was the statement of President Bizzell. "I hate the practice like a snake and have fought it during my administration without making any concessions. In fact, I have been so bitter in my opposition to it that many people have come to call me a 'crann' on that subject, at least. The law has been explained from time to time and I have adopted many means of fighting the practice. But, gentlemen, if your committee, with the power of the State behind you and the ability to administer oaths, could not adduce information from boys who have left the College from one cause or another, on which to involve boys who have been guilty of this practice, how do you think the College authorities, with lesser powers than yours, can accomplish that end?"

That he never had seen a fish killer until this investigation began and that he had never heard of the term until last September was one of the statements of the commandant. He explained to the committee that the seniors did not run the College, as had been stated by Senator Parr, but that the senior cadet officers did exercise supervision over the men under their command. All of their powers were restricted to recommendations made to the commandant for his approval or disapproval.

Both Dr. Bizzell and Major Ashburn declared the general moral tone of the College is higher now than at any previous time in the history of their connection with the College. They hold the opinion, they told the committee, that paddling could be entirely eliminated as the students had come to feel the reports circulated by some boys on that account were greatly injuring the institution. Both characterized the loyalty of the student body as wonderful.

Dr. Otto Ehlinger, summoned as a witness, succumbed to heart failure last Monday. He had been called at the instance of Senator Parr. The committee report will be filed within the next few days.

MR. ALICE GRESHAM DODD, mother of first American soldier killed in France, who gives entire credit for recovery of her health to the well-known medicine, Tanlac.

The following remarkable statement was made recently by Mrs. Alice Gresham Dodd, the mother of Corporal Jas. B. Gresham, who was the first American soldier killed in France. The statement was made at the Gresham Memorial Home, which was presented to her by the patriotic people of Indiana as an evidence of their appreciation of the services rendered to his country by her son.

The shock of her son's death resulted in a serious breakdown in Mrs. Dodd's health, but every one will learn with interest and pleasure that she is now in splendid health again. Mrs. Dodd gives the entire credit for her recovery to the celebrated medicine, Tanlac.

She said: "After my dear boy's death I had a general breakdown in health. At first it was just indigestion. My food would upset me and I had to diet myself very carefully. I also had rheumatism with severe pains in my shoulders, back and arms and at times I would suffer greatly, and my joints would become swollen and stiff. I was hardly able to do very little about the house and at times could not even cook a meal. I became very nervous and restless and at night would lie awake for hours.

"A friend of mine advised me to try Tanlac. I am glad I did, for it proved to be the best medicine I have ever taken. It soon gave me a splendid appetite and relieved me entirely of indigestion. My rheumatism also disappeared and I am now able to do my house-work with the greatest ease. My nerves are steady and strong. I sleep well at night and my health is better than in years. I shall always be grateful for what Tanlac has done for me."

Tanlac is sold in Bryan by N. A. Stewart and all leading druggists.

POULTRY RAISING OPPORTUNITY FOR BRAZOS FARMERS

(F. W. Kazmeier)

The problems of the average farmer in Brazos county, seemingly are increasing each year. It is no longer a case of sowing, reaping and then resting comfortably the remainder of the year. People are beginning to realize that successful farming is both a science and an art.

One fact we must consider in the early part of this article, and that is, that the average Brazos county farmer has been born and reared to look upon cotton as the most important line of agriculture. The average Brazos county farm is equipped to produce cotton, and the average farmer is experienced in the production of cotton. It is impossible to change this general plan in a few months or even in a few years. I do not know how many bales of cotton will be produced in Brazos county the coming year. Maybe some of our farmers believe for the impossible to happen, and that is that the price will return to a profitable basis. Remember we have almost a year's production of cotton, as surplus, and already our farmers are beginning to plan to produce another big crop. The man that really has the welfare and interest of his county at heart, and that believes in improving farm lands, instead of impoverishing them, can recommend but one system of farming and that is live-stock farming.

True, it is that live-stock farming requires more regular work, more work every day in the year; and that is one reason our Brazos county farmers hesitate considering live-stock farming favorably.

Live-stock farming is the foundation of sound agriculture and safe farming. One crop farming is distinctly a case of robbery. Robbing the soil, with never a thought of improving it. Now it may be that local conditions, force or necessitate a one crop system. If that is true, we can never hope that Brazos county may develop as an agricultural county. I firmly believe, that gradually we can change our system of farming and include live-stock in our program. Gradually our farmers can learn more about the successful raising of live-stock. We have in Brazos county over 2,600 farms large and small. On these farms, according to the 1910 census we have only 75,978 head of poultry valued at $28,137.00. Poultry keeping presents most wonderful opportunities to our Brazos county farmers. All that is necessary is to get busy. Instead of 75,000 chickens, Brazos county should have at least 400,000 chickens or more than five times as many. Two hundred hens on the average farm, would require no extra outlay of labor or expense. It is just as easy to handle 200 hens as 100 hens, and requires but little more housing. Just what would 200 hens to every Brazos county farm mean financially or in dollars and cents. A net income of $1.25 per hen per year is a very ordinary showing. Many flocks are much more profitable, and only a very few that make a smaller net showing. On the basis of $1.25 net profit per hen per year or 20 hens on 2,600 farms, would be a net total of $650,000. Divided among the three Bryan banks. It would mean that each bank deposits would be increased by more than $200,000. The average annual poultry net profit per farm would amount to $250. In period of twenty years this would amount to $5,000 per farm, and for the entire county $13,000,000. In other words Brazos county farmers could add half a million dollars each year to the agriculture wealth of the county or thirteen million every twenty years. These figures are not shown from imagination, but based on actual experience in Brazos county.

The beautiful part about this program of farming is that it need not detract from any of the other possibilities. Two hundred hens on the average farm would pick up much that would otherwise go to waste, and they would not keep any farmer from growing large crops of cotton or other farm crops. The net income from the 200 hens would only be an addition to the regular farm income.

Scrub Chickens

Too many of our farmers still believe in scrub chickens. They are interested in just eating chickens. My advice may not be given much weight, yet in order to clear my conscience, I must say that scrub chickens are a money-losing proposition. Scrub chickens are inferior to standard breeds in every respect. The saying "there is no money in chickens" applies only to scrub chickens and not to standard bred poultry. Many keep scrub chickens because they are following the path of least resistance. Standard-bred poultry are just as good or better "eating chickens" than scrub chickens. The greatest net returns can not be expected from mongrel or scrub chickens.

Early Hatching

The early chicks are the most profitable, strongest and easiest to raise. Early chicks make the best winter layers, and develop into the best show birds. Early hatching is the secret to success in the poultry business. March is the very best month to hatch chicks. You will find them to develop into the most profitable birds.

Feeding.

A large number of chicks are lost every year because they are fed too much the first week. They should first be fed when thirty-six to forty-eight hours old, with a little grit and a small amount of hard boiled egg mixed with rolled oats or bread crumbs and should be given all the milk they wish to drink. The second week, the chicks should be fed often, but in small quantities, since the digestive organs are not completely developed before the end of the first week. The feed, thereafter, should at all times contain (a) flesh producing or protein feed such as sour skimmed milk, buttermilk, meat scraps, bran or shorts; (b) bone producing or ash feeds such as ground bone, bran or milk, and (c) heat, energy and fat producing feeds or carbohydrates, such as cracked corn, cracked maize, cracked kaffir, cracked wheat or oats without hulls. After chicks are half grown, grain need not be cracked. Sour milk should be kept before chicks at all times. The dishes should be scalded often to prevent poisonous molds from growing in them. Do not spill the milk on the ground as this often breeds diseases. Where milk is not available, meat scrap may be used. Dry, ground bone may be kept in a hopper, or may be mixed with the feed, allowing a pound of bone for each fifteen pounds of feed. When chicks are half grown and on range, they may be fed in self feeders. These should be used some distance from the roosting house to encourage the chicks to exercise. Provide plenty of range with grass or wheat or oats for grazing.

Right now the biggest question BEFORE US ALL is, "WHAT CAN THE FARMER TURN TO in order to MAKE QUICK and SURE MONEY." With Cotton shot to pieces the ONE BIG NEED is for something to sell to bring in READY CASH to buy such things as coffee, sugar, rice, clothing, shoes and other absolutely necessary things that take READY CASH.

We wanted an INCUBATOR that would hatch EVERY FERTILE EGG, one that didn't cost too much, one that was EASY and SIMPLE TO OPERATE and one that the MAKER ABSOLUTELY GUARANTEED, so that we could say to you WE WOULD REFUND YOUR MONEY ON if it didn't more than meet your expectations.

It was with this purpose in mind that led us to select THE SAFETY HATCH INCUBATOR, and SAFETY HATCH SUPPLIES.
